NEED OF MORE POLICE IS SEEN BY OFFICIALS

Special Officers Suggested to Help Force in Time of Need Here

FIREMEN OFFER HELP

Target Practice Can be Given Special Men When Patrolmen at Practice

The recent hold-up and robbery of the Sebastian grocery has awakened the city officials to the need of more police protection this winter. The Glendale police department is, collectively and individually, an efficient organization and is leaving nothing undone to give protection to property owners and citizens but according to reports there is no city in Southern California that has a police department sufficiently large to cope with the crime wave that is expected in the west this winter. Plans are being discussed at the city hall to give additional protection to this city.

Those in authority point to the fact that Glendale has a number of special policemen who are willing to co-operate with the department in maintaining law and order. It has been suggested that the special officers be trained in the same manner that a patrolman is trained. These men could be drilled by police drillmaster, Captain W. A. Loving, at the same time the patrolmen are drilled, and on the days set aside for department target practice the special officers could be included in the details sent to the range and given training in the use of a revolver. These men would be of vast use to the department in case of an emergency such as the hold-up on Saturday night.

According to the plan, the special officers would not be required to walk a beat or be on duty at any spesipied time but would be held as an emergency or reserve squad. They are employed or live in various sections of the city and with proper training would prove an asset to the city.

This plan has been suggested to City Manager Reeves and may be put into operation. If it does not prove successful, Fire Chief Lankford has notifed the city manager and Chief Martin that his men are willing to assist the police department in running down and capturing criminals at any time and that his high powered automobile is always at the disposal of the police department in time of emergency.

It has also been suggested that the members of the fire department be given training at the rifle range with revolvers and shotguns in order to increase their efficiency with these weapons in case a squad of firemen is called to assist in the capture of a criminal.

Police drill master, Captain Loving, has announced that he will take steps at once to secure a bobbing target for the patrolmen and others detailed to practice on the range. At present the only target that is in use by the department is a bulls-eye. The bobbing target is full size head and shoulders of a man and when in use allows only a second for the shot. It appears facing the shooter and is turned immediately giving the effect of a man running and dodging.

Accept in Spirit in Principle Too; Read Editorials

The whole world is concerned today in the acceptance by the great powers of the arms limitation program of the United States. Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan agree in "spirit and principle" to the proposals of the United States. In this, a greater battle has been won than ever was won on the battlefields in all the history of the world. It is, after all, triumph of right over might.

Gavin McNab, chief counsel for Arbuckle, asks jurors if the fact that Arbuckle had a "dinner party" where wine was served would influence them in arriving at a verdict. Mr. McNab is a brilliant criminal lawyer and he knows, apparently, that he has a hard battle to prove his client innocent. The fact that Arbuckle may have disrespected the eighteenth amendment is naturally a factor to be considered—but not at this trial.

The editorial page of the Glendale Press today is interesting—as usual. Dr. Frank Crane talks on "The Coming War." Read "The Listening Post" too, and Henry James has something worth your while.

A QUESTIONAIRE

Mr. Glendale Newspaper Space Buyer

Do You Know—

That advertising in the Glendale Daily Press costs you less per hundred circulation than in any other newspaper in the city?

That the Glendale Daily Press goes to nearly 4000 homes and stores and offices in Glendale, its suburbs and in Burbank and Eagle Rock?

That space in the Glendale Daily Press costs .0094 per inch per 100 circulation, while in its competitor space costs .011 per inch per 100 circulation, according to its last sworn statement, published September 30th, 1921?

That the Glendale Daily Press is gradually securing almost double the circulation of its competitor?

That the Glendale Daily Press was the first Glendale newspaper to give Glendale the distinction of having a newspaper with a full leased wire news service?

That the Glendale Daily Press columns are open for the discussion of all matters of public importance?

That the Glendale Daily Press gives its subscribers a $1000 accident policy absolutely without cost?

Now that you know these things—for all of these questions answer themselves—are you taking advantage of the SUPERIOR SERVICE?

We are here to serve, we are going to stay to serve.

World Powers Approve Arms Limitation Plan

The powers of the world today approved in principle America's sweeping proposals of limitation of naval armaments. One after another the official representatives of Great Britain, Japan, Italy and France rose in conference and accepted the American program in laudatory terms. Britain suggested certain reservations to the proposals as to submarine tonnage and replacement.

Japan indicated it would ask slight modifications of the replacements provision. France urged that limitation of land armament be brought up speedily.

Italy gave unqualified approval of the American plan. Hughes expressed gratification at the acceptance of the powers and indicated he believed the success of the conference was assured. The conference adjourned to meet on call of the chairman.

SUSPICIOUS PAIR TOLD LEAVE TOWN

Bicycle Theft is Reported to Police Last Night by Ilan Fanset

A call was received at the police station Monday night asking for an officer to be sent to the Central hotel on Brand boulevard, as there were some men prowling around the alley. Officer Lauritsen found two men in the alley and took them into the station. They gave their names as Carlos Lacy and Alex Field. As they could give no satisfactory explanation for their presence in the alley, the desk sergeant told the two men to leave town at once.

Iland Fanset reported to the police department Monday night that someone had stolen his bicycle from his home at 501 East Wilson avenue on Thursday night.

COMPLAINT FILED FOR ACCOUNTING

Citizens Want to Get Information on Funds for Use of Rail Committee

Relative to the complaint "for report, accounting and refunding of money paid" recently filed in the court against the East Glendale railroad commiittee, (a voluntary body), by C. G. Edmonds, Chris Smith, H. Heide, J. N. Parrish, S. R. Dixon, I C. Pierce and other plaintiffs, P. S. McNutt, attorney for plaintiffs, in a statement made today, said:

"The complaint is on file in the superior court for action. Summons has been served on the committee to answer. It is a matter of interest to all Glendale citizens and contains news the people will be interested in knowing. Many people have suggested its publication as that is the only practical way by which it can be made known."

M'BRYDE SEES SOME LEAGUE NATIONS IN HUGHES PLAN

Says it is Same as Article 8, Kitterman Sees Hope of Peace in Parley

James F. McBryde, attorney and adjutant of Glendale Post No. 127, American Legion, is in favor of the plan of Secretary Hughes for securing world peace by stopping the manufacture of arms and an international naval building holiday for a period of ten years. This plan would virtually mean the junking of the navies of the world. Discussing the plan, Mr. McBryde said:

"I think the plan of Secretary Hughes is a very good one and is a great step forward. It is practically the same plan as outlined in Article 8 of the League of Nations document. The difference between the present plan and Article 8 is that, under the League of Nations plan it would have been left to a council to determine the reduction of the navies.

"The ten-year period was adopted by the league as the period for cessation of the naval programs. The only change that I can see is that the terms of the period of disarmament is to be decided at this conference. It will accomplish the same results hoped for in the terms of the League of Nations without the other articles, which were objected to by the majority of the people of the United States.

"I am looking for great good to come to the world under the plan as outlined by Secretary Hughes to assure world peace. It is all wrong to plan for war as a means of promoting peace. I am glad that the United States has taken the stand as indicated by Secretary Hughes at the conference, and laid all of the cards on the table. This will force the other nations at the parley to do the same.

"The men of the American Legion fought for the United States and are willing to do so again should the necessity arise, but they believe in peace. It was for the peace of the world that they fought and they want it assured to the world without the necessity of another war."

"I think that it will be very important in the matter of bringing about world peace," said R. F. Kitterman, Monday, discussing Secretary Hughes' plan for world peace by scrapping the navies of the world. He continued: "I can see no reason for the nations to continue preparations for war while at the same time they are talking peace.

"I think that Secretary Hughes' plan of scrapping the navies of the world is a good move. In fact, I don't see how the purposes of the present conference could be attained in any other manner."

EYES OF NATION ARE ON GLENDALE SAYS SEC'Y RHOADES

Letters Come in From Every Part of Nation Asking Information

Secretary Rhoades of the Glendale chamber of commerce says that things are "looking up" for Glendale. By this Mr. Rhoades means that if the present number of inquiries about Glendale and the housing facilities, etc., that were received in this morning's mail are to be taken as a criterion, things will hum more than ever before here.

It seems that people all over the United States have their eyes on Glendale, expecting, some day to make this their home. In this morning's mail letters were received from the following people:

L. E. Howard, 2711 East First street, Long Beach, wants descriptive articles of Glendale. He wants to come to Glendale to live, but does not want to "leap before he looks." L. Knight of Santa Barbara also wants literature concerning Glendale. From what he has already seen of Glendale he thinks this place looks good to him.

Glendale also has taken the eye of Fred Dallenback who is visiting in Riverside. He is delighted with Southern California, and especially with Glendale. J. C. McConnell of Lancaster wants to come to Glendale to live, as does L. B. Bowers of Geneva, Ohio. Mr. Bowers wants to know about the housing conditions here.

E. X. Summers of Warren, Ohio, has heard of Glendale and wants literature and facts. Arthur W. Ryan of Ontario, California, has made several trips to Glendale. He has been "tagged" by the Glendale fever and is practically on his way. Mrs. W. L. Mitchell of Hickory, N. C., writes for literature concerning Glendale. She expects to move here.

MISS CAMPBELL TO SPEAK WEDNESDAY

Mrs. McCann, who has been advertised as the speaker on the Red Cross at the high school Wednesday evening, is unable to come and her place will be taken by Miss Campbell, who, was chairman of the West Virginia Red Cross chapter during the war. This is expected to be one of the big meetings in connection with the Red Cross roll call now on in this city. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock.

CHICAGO HAS ITS MEANEST HUSBAND

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Tullius Dickholtz, a taxicab chauffeur, could not be indicted for generosity, taking it from his wife, Pearl, who is suing him for separate maintenance. She says he is so stingy it hurts him to smile at his baby or speak to it. Then, as further evidence of his nature, she cites the alleged fact that ever since 1916 she had been saving and hoarding pennies and finally accumulated $2, which she spent for material for a new hat, the first she had purchased in five years. Because of this, she says, her husband wasted many hot words in berating her for her "extravagance."

GREAT BRITAIN MAY GO FARTHER WITH NAVY REDUCTION

British Naval Experts Believe Submarines Should be Further Reduced

CONTINENTAL HALL, WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—America's plan for a drastic cut in naval armament was heartily and officially accepted today "in spirit and principle" by Great Britain through its greatest statesman, Arthur J. Balfour. He suggested only two reservations—on submarines and replacements.

Speaking to the arms conference in Continental hall, hesitating here and there, he plied President Harding and Secretary Hughes with praise for America's bold move.

The step taken by America will be epochal, he said, and the British empire is glad to be able to endorse the program. A suffering world would look with thanks to their efforts, he added.

Even a greater reduction in submarines than was proposed by the United States was the essence of the British reservation in this respect.

British experts also believed, Balfour stated, that the big cruising submarine designed strictly for offensive purposes should be banned.

As to replacements which involve the extent to which Great Britain is willing to accept the 10-year naval holiday, Balfour suggested no details, merely stating that Great Britain is willing to leave both the reservations to the consideration of the conference committees. There was not the slightest hint, however, that England was in any wise endeavoring to sabotage the 10-year naval holiday, as some of the representatives of the British dominions had feared.

'BULL' MONTANA WAS HERE TO GET MATCH

Would Meet Hackenschmidt Under Auspices of American Legion Post

Bull Montana, known to the screen and sporting world as "Bool," the "handsome" motion picture actor, was in Glendale Monday afternoon and visited the Glendale Daily Press, where he stated that he was in the city to challenge John (Young) Hackenschmidt to a wrestling match. He said he would meet the local wrestler at any time, in Glendale, and would give the fans their money's worth.

Montana and Hackenschmidt have wrestled before and neither is satisfied with the outcome of the match. Before Hackenschmidt's Armistice Day match with "Butch" Metzeti he stated he was willing to wrestle Montana in Glendale if the fans wanted to see such a match. The fans like Hackenschmidt's style and they all know the "Bool" by reputation, if not by sight, and a match between these two would be an attraction that would delight the sporting fraternity.

In stating that he wanted to meet Hackenschmidt in a two out of three fall match, the "Bool" stated he wanted to arrange the match, if it can so be arranged, under the auspices of the American Legion, Glendale Post No. 127. Members of the sporting circle in Glendale feel that such a match under the supervision of the Legion would be one of the big attractions of the year.

JOINT SHIPYARD IS NOW PROPOSED

WASINGTON, Nov. 15.—A joint Anglo-American shipyard to construct a limited number of naval vessels for the United States and Great Britain during the naval holiday will be suggested by the British delegation as part of its reservation to the replacement provisions of the American program. Great Britain, however, would scrap its larger yards, which may be used "contrary to the spirit" of the Hughes program, it was semi-officially revealed. The proposed joint shipyard would be "large enough to make one ship a year only."

GET $4,200 LOOT

ROY, Wash., Nov. 15.—Three masked bandits, one of them said to be a youth under 20, held up the Roy State Bank here at closing time Monday and escaped with $4200, leaving E. S. Emigh, the cashier, and Mrs. May Crowley, bookkeeper, locked in the bank vault.

WORLD BE BORN AGAIN IS BRYAN VIEW OF PARLEY

Great Commoner Sees People in Saddle for Ending All Warfare

DIPLOMACY FAILED

Conference Talks in Language Understood by All Peoples of World

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
(Copyright 1921 by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Washington is the center of world interest today. Dispatches are coming in from all the nations, expressing approval of the nations' stand on disarmament. What a lesson in international morality! The language of diplomacy is sometimes used for the concealing of ideas; crafty suggestions and crafty answers pass between crafty diplomats, and they are approved by crafty politicians.

Government control by a few, for selfish ends, has often continued over periods of years, because those in authority had force to back them and because the people were ignorant of the real ends pursued. The present conference has set a new precedent and its practically unanimous approval proves that "honesty is the best policy," even in international affairs.

The heart of the world is sound; the mind may be misled by sophistry but the heart of the multitude responds to an appeal made to it in language that can be understood.

The people can understand what "one half" means, whether it is a half of a loaf or half of a navy. They konw what "ten years" means —120 months, 520 weeks, 3,652 days —a period of relief from war, such an amount of relief from the burdens of war as has never come to the human race before in all its history.

Is it strange that the world is happy? Is it strange that politicians, regardless of their private views, fall into line and applaud? There is contagion in a crowd.

Everyone who has attended a national political convention of either of the great parties knows how enthusiasm will spread until cold hearts become warm and skeptics become enthusiasts. This is more than a political convention and this stirring of the heart is not as ephemeral as a wave of applause. It looks as if the world is to be born again. It swings from the philosophy of Neitzsche to the philosophy of Christ. It may take some time to settle down to the new philosophy, but when the world starts to disarm, other things come as a matter of course. Neitzsche taught that war was not only necessary but desirable; this conference declares that war is not only undesirable but unnecessary. It has started out to abolish war and that means that the whole basis of international relations is to be changed.

The same reasons that lead to the reduction of navies will lead to the reduction of the armies. In fact, in this country, the demand for the reduction of the army is more unanimous that the demand for the reduction of the navy.

JAPAN ACCEPTANCE HAILED TO ECHO AT CONFERENCE

Baron Kato Says Japan is Ready to do Whatever Will Secure Peace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Japan accepts in principle the American plan for limitation of armament, Baron Kato, head of the Imperial Japanese navy, declared before the arms conference today. His statement followed the official declaration of Great Britain that the proposals of the United States would be accepted.

He said Japan, like Great Britain, would propose modifications of the American proposals regarding replacements. Kato brought the great crowd to its feet when he unequivocally declared that Japan is ready for "a sweeping reduction" in its navy.

"I must speak simply, concisely and above all, frankly," said Kato. A few modifications relating to replacements of certain classes of ships will be suggested for consideration of naval experts, he said. Japan never has and does not now desire a navy to equal those of the United States or England, but wants only the armaments essential to defense, he said. The brief speech was applauded to an echo.

Nation's Business Largely Up To Postal Department

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—"On more than any other one thing the nation's business depends on the postal service." Postmaster-General Will H. Hays made that assertion and proceeded to give many facts and figures to bear it out. "The postal establishment is the biggest business in the world," he said, "employing 325,000 men and women, or about one postal employe to every 308 of the country's hundred million population.

"In order to visualize the immensity of its business operation," continued the Postmaster-General, "let us roughly estimate that there are 12,000,000,000 letters and 3,000,000,000 parcels handled annually. There are 33,000,000 copies of daily newspapers printed, many of which go through the mail service. Nearly 14,000,000,000 postage stamps, 2,700,000,000 stamped envelopes and 1,125,000,000 postal cards are sold annually. The enormous sum of $1,500,000,000 is issued in money orders annually. There are 500,000 depositors of postal savings, larger in number than any banking institution existing, and their deposits amount to $152,000,000."

Big Rural Delivery

Postmaster-General Hays pointed out that the postal establishment operates its railway mail service over rail trackage long enough to encircle the earth ten times. The rural delivery service serves over six and one-half million families. The length of the routes is about 1,170,000 miles and the carriers travel annually back and forth over these routes a distance of 363,000,000 miles.

Some other amazing figures were used by Mr. Hays to emphasize the immensity of the postal service. For instance, the railway mail service uses 65,000,000 mail sacks in which to carry the mail, and it takes 6,000,000 yards of canvas to make these sacks. Nearly 800,000 miles of twine is used annually to tie up the packages of letters in transit, or enough to wrap around the earth thirty-two times. The facing slips used on these packages as labels amount to 1,625,000,000 annually. The pincushion of the Postal Service is kept filled from 5,200,000 boxes of pins anually, and 1,500,000 lead pencils and 5,000,000 pens are used each year.

Call In Business Men

"The Postal Service has been taken for granted pretty much as the sequence of the seasons," said the Postmaster-General. "The task involved in its operation is not apparent to the average man, who is too much concerned in his own business or has never been invited to give thought or suggestion to postal improvements. He shall no longer have occasion to say that the postal problems have not had consideration by business men, because he is going to sit in on the solution of these problems, which will engage the best minds of the biggest business men in the country. In order that we might have the benefit in the largest possible way of the ideas of business men as to improving the Postal Service, we have called into conference and have appointed to important positions business men, some of whom are serving without pay."

According to Postmaster-General Hays, the weak link in the Postal Service has been the low morale of the employes. "We are trying to improve the working conditions of the 325,000 men and women employes who are doing the job," he said. "This in itself is an accomplishment and it is just as certain to bring consequential improvement in the service as tomorrow's sun."

The Welfare Department is in operation in Washington directing the improvement of the working conditions in the department and in the field. A national welfare council, composed of representatives elected by the employes, meets periodically with the Welfare Department and discusses matters affecting postal employes generally. The postal workers are enthusiastic over this plan to allow them to have some say in questions affecting their welfare and to have an opportunity to offer suggestions for improvement.

Mr. Hays pointed out that efforts are being made to reduce the continuous night work of the employes. This is being accomplished through the mail early campaign and where possible the night workers are placed on part day and evening shifts.

TWO BANDITS MUST SERVE LIFE TERMS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—After serving prison sentences till they die, Clarence Richardson and Holly Ritter must each serve another life sentence, according to the decision of Judge Houser. Richardson and Ritter are two of the gang of bandits who terrorized oil stations here during October, robbing them of many thousands of dollars. They pleaded guilty to all of the thirteen counts contained in the complaint filed against them.

Judge Houser sentenced them to life imprisonment on each of th two counts, the sentences to run consecutively. He suspended sentence on the other eleven counts for six years. Richardson ,the accredited brains of the gang, exonerated Lloyd Harris, whose trial is set for Thursday.

Death Anita Merlo Brings Stage Romance to Close

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—This is a story of love and devotion that had its beginning on the stage of the old Third Avenue Theater, New York, twenty years ago, and its final scenes in Evergreen Cemetery, Los Angeles, with actors and actresses of days gone by as mourners, when the body of Mrs. J. M. Harris, who was better known by her stage name of Anita Merlo, was laid to rest.

Jim Harris, the widower, with erect carriage, which served to conceal his years, stood a bit apart, dry-eyed but with a heart-breaking flood of memories passing in review through his mind as he recalled the times innumerable that he, as the hero, and his wife, now in her last resting place, as heroine, had thrilled to repeated curtain calls. But that was years ago.

Harris was a leading man of prominence in 1900 and Anita Merlo, even in New York, was considered a most promising heroine. About that time Harry Tracy, the outlaw, was in the zenith of his notoriety, and when a play, "Harry Tracy, the Outlaw," was put on at the Third Avenue Theater Harris and Miss Merlo were given the leading parts.

Mutual admiration ripened into love and marriage. And it was one stage romance that proved happy.

Thirteen years ago, in Southern California, while Harris was appearing in monologues and Miss Merlo in travesties, she became ill. Their act as a pair was broken. Try as he might, Harris could not make a success before the footlights with the thoughts of his wife suffering at home on his mind.

But the stage and the footlights had been his only school. Still, his wife needed medical attention and he must earn money. The Los Angeles aqueduct was under construction at the time and Harris began work as a day laborer with a pick and shovel.

For thirteen long years he nursed his wife and worked as a laborer in Los Angeles and is now doing manual labor at the plant of a concern manufacturing roofing material. Operations, radium treatments and specialists came high, and Harris even worked on Sundays to add a few dollars to his pay envelope in the hope that some day his once leading lady might have her suffering lessened.

STRANGEST NAVY IN WORLD FOUND

LONDON, Nov. 15.—What is probably the strangest navy in history has just sprung into being. The little Baltic State of Latvia recently decided that it must have some warships to protect its long coastline and prevent smuggling, and so it has now put into commission a battle fleet of three armed tugboats!

Not content with this armada, Latvia has decided to have a flagship for it. Her first "battleship," the Versaiti, will be launched this month, and it will be a vessel of 525 tons, with a speed of seventeen knots.

The Versaiti has had an interesting if inglorious career already, for she is nothing less than the old German guardship EM-68, which was sunk in Latvian waters in 1917, and has now been raised and renovated.

She is certainly the only guardship that has risen from the depths of the sea to the dizzy heights of becoming the flagship of a battle fleet.

LOCAL PEOPLE IN FILM BEING MADE

Virginia Huntley to Take Leading Role in Picture Filmed for T. D. & L.

The Addis Film Co., which is making a motion picture in Glendale, entitled "A New York Financier," will start the actual filming of the story today. In this story a number of young folks of Glendale will take leading parts.

Miss Virginia Huntley will be the feminine lead, while the "hero" will be Paul Hutchinson. Robert J. Fry will take the part of the minister, and more or less important parts will be assigned to Misses Doris Packer, Mildred Stanford and Eleanor Sawyer, and Messrs. William Justema, Fred Terzo and Kenneth Jackson.

The arrival of the "New York Financier" will take place some time after noon today at the Southern Pacific station in South Glendale. Following this, various scenes will be taken about town, showing how the "financier" got into trouble, got out again, fell in love, got married, with fair prospects of living happily ever after. The filming of this picture will be finished this week. The films will then be developed in time for showing at the T. D. & L. theater on the evenings of November 23 and 24. The fact that "shots" are being taken in many of the business establishments of this city, as well as local schools and offices, will make this picture unusually interesting to Glendale people.

'NO SUCH NUMBER' MARKED ON WIRE

Bilodeau is Hurt Because Western Union Isn't Keeping Up With Times

Glendale is growing so fast that even the Western Union apparently cannot keep up with the marvelous growth of the city, at least that is the only logical excuse for the failure of the company to deliver a telegram to E. J. Bilodeau, 343 Pacific avenue. The message was from Albert Bilodeau of San Diego and was returned to the sender marked "no such number." It may be true that there was no such number at the time the message was received but the city is growing and there is a 343 Pacific avenue in Glendale today, and there was on November 15, the day the message was sent:

In the country where everything of extraordinary size, be it bird, beast, fruit or flower, attributes its marvelous growth to the climate, it is barely possible that the climate of Glendale is such that the town grew over night to such extent that the messenger boy found that he was in a new country. It is needless to advise operators and messengers of the local telegraph company to secure a map of the city and study its marvelous growth every morning.

TURKEY RAFFLE TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

Comparatively uneventful was the meeting of the Glendale Elks' Lodge Monday night. The next big affair in which it will participate is the installation at the Ventura Lodge on December 2 and 3. Next Monday night will occur theh annual turkey sale for the benefit of the lodge's Christmas fund. This is always a hilarious occasion on which some members spend much money without getting anything and others acquire a bird at the first try.

LONDON PAPERS LOSE

LONDON, Nov. 15.—"There is not a single newspaper in London today that is making a profit, and there is certainly not a paper mill making a profit," declared Lord Burnham, the owner of the Daily Telegraph, at a meeting in the London Mansion House.

NEW HOUSE CUTS OFF SHORT-CUT HOME PEOPLE REBEL

Residents at Verdugo Wash Want Some Action to Make Reparation

Residents of the east side of Brand boulevard in the vicinity of Arden station at the Verdugo wash complain to the city officials that the only route they have to reach their homes on the east side of the tracks has been closed by the building of a house in the middle of a lot that has heretofore been used as a thoroughfare. Relief in the situation has been asked.

According to complainants, it has long been the custom for residents of this district to leave the Pacific Electric cars at Arden station and walk through this lot to their homes on the east side. Recently the owner of the lot started building a house and closed the thoroughfare, forcing residents to walk to Doran street, a considerable distance, in order to reach their homes.

The matter has been taken up with City Engineer Hill and he was instructed to make an investigation of the section and either condemn a street through the property in the vicinity or take steps to construct a street east from Brand boulevard along Verdugo wash.

Miss Ruth Palm of Los Angeles was the Sunday guest of the Misses Rose and Alice McLaughlin of 818 South Maryland avenue.

Field-Marshal Robertson Defends Lord Kitchener

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Field-Marshal Sir William Robertson, in a recent interview printed in the London Express, added the weight of his personal knowledge to the defense of the late Lord Kitchener's reputation as a soldier, which has been vigorously upheld by the newspaper.

"I believe that when Lord Kitchener died he was as good a man as he had ever been in his life, as useful a soldier and as capable a public servant," said Field Marshal Robertson. "I do not deny that in 1915 Kitchener was tired—very tired. Think of what he had accomplished. But to assert he was played out is ridiculous. Kitchener, to my mind, made one mistake in his life—the absurd pose he was so fond of striking, of camouflaging his real nature for one that was cold, aloof and unapproachable. The reason for this pose I cannot imagine. The result was a misunderstanding of the real man, the misreading of many fine characteristics and a reputation for hardness which, in actuality, was non-existent.

A Sense of Humor

"Many of those who worked side by side with him knew little of his real character; it will be realized, therefore, how little it was known to the public. Kitchener was a man who, above all things, did not wear his heart on his sleeve. And yet there were those in whose presence he readily threw aside his reserve and adopted the friendliest manner. There were those with whom he was not merely on the happiest terms of friendship, but in whose company he revealed the fact that he was far from lacking in the sense of humor. 'K. of K.' could not merely enjoy a joke—he could make one. The idea of this great soldier being a cold, saturnine sphinx is wholly mistaken.

"With regard to the controversy which has raged round Kitchener's name, it must be remembered that the soldier and the politician are different individuals, different in training, in perspective and in method. A soldier is seldom a great debater, and allowances must be made on both sides. The politicians did not always realize the difficulties of the war from the military standpoint. The soldiers at the council board may have failed sufficently to consider the war in all its national bearings.

"This difference of outlook was the natural outcome of circumstances then obtaining. Not only was the war colossal and without precedent in its magnitude, but its various phases were colossal, while at the outset the situation was aggravated by lack of preparedness.

Facing His Critics

"Kitchener being in the Lords, his critics in the Commons during the war found it difficult sometimes to obtain the information they sought. I shall never forget the time, however, when at last he faced these critics. I was with him on that occasion and must say that, despite the somewhat unsympathetic attitude of some of the members at the beginning of the meeting, long before it was over those present had come round to the opinion that Lord Kitchener was the right man in the right place. The questions that were put to him on that occasion were not numerous, and the answers were such as to dissipate once and for all the false notion that Kitchener had failed to grasp the magnitude of his task and the intricacies of the problem he was engaged in solving.

"Unfortunately, no sooner had he succeeded in re-establishing his reputation than the end came. When people talk of the tragedy of Kitchener's life it is not always apparent of what they are speaking, but this, I think, is the real tragedy—that he died at the moment when his reputation had been cleared of the misconceptions about is work under which it labored all too long, and that his help was not available at the peace conference."

BELCHER IN COURT FOR TWO OFFENSES

Disorderly Conduct Resisting Arrest Result of Quarrel Thursday

R. Belcher appeared in Police Judge F. H. Lowe's court Monday afternoon for arraignment on a charge of disturbing the peace by quarreling at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway on Thursday, November 10, and resisting arrest. It is also charged that he drew a knife on Officer McGuire.

Belcher entered a plea of "not guilty" to the first charge, which is a misdemeanor, and demanded a trial by jury. This will be held December 15 at 10 a. m. He did not enter a plea to the other charge as it is a felony, and the preliminary hearing on that charge was set for 2 p. m. on December 15. Judge Lowe set bail at $200 cash or two qualified bondsmen for the amount of $500 each. Belcher supplied the bondsmen.

Belcher was named in a recent battery case by a representative of a Los Angeles morning paper who claimed that Belcher attacked him after he had remonstrated with Belcher for belittling the American Legion and the administration of the United States.

MACHINERY WILL BE IMPORTANT WHEN NEXT WAR COMES

If Another Great Struggle Comes Warfare Revert to 500 Years B. C.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A new form of warfare that shall revert to the days of 500 years B. C. and be a return to the individualism of the heroic warfare of supermen mounted on elephants and racing in chariots is the vision of the future read by General Sir Ian Hamilton.

Concurrent with the development of the post-war movements for the reduction of armaments and the struggle for development of international methods of avoiding war there has been a veritable epidemic of "official" forecasts regarding the wars of the future. Generals and admirals have drawn the lessons of the last war and projected from them pictures of the war of the future, generally in the form of books of strategy and in memoirs.

None has clothed his thesis more graphically in the terms of prophecy than the former Gallipoli commander, in his new book, "The Soul and Body of an Army."

"We must fix our minds upon the thought that just as men seemed to be on the very point of obliterating the Man—up he got; seized hold of an airplane in one hand and a tank in the other, plucked individualism out of the mud and set it once more upon its feet in the open field, where numbers and blind obedience are going to have less and less of an inning against science and efficiency.

Revive Old Battles

"Outwardly the battle of the future will resemble battles which took place before the birth of Carist rather than those fields of sinister desolation and solitude where we have suffered. The areas of conflict, the use of tanks and motors as the pivot of the forces where formerly elephants and war chariots maneuvered will have more affinity to 500 B. C. than to A. D. 1917.

"Trench warfare is already dead. The tank and the airplane are inaugurating an era of economic strategy which was demanded, indeed, by the situation during the last war, but was demanded, alas, in vain!

"In the next war machines will no longer be denied and wide encircling movements, followed by distant battles fought between comparatively small forces, will be the order of the world to come. No longer will the British fleet sit like a hooded falcon upon Britannia's wrist. The old days will be revived and the coast line of the enemy, wherever it may be—Black Sea, Yellow Sea, Red Sea—will be our frontier."

CANADA SOLDIERS INTERESTED IN THIS

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 15.—Canadian war veterans living outside of Canada will be interested to learn that the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act has been amended to enable former members of the Canadian forces, no matter where resident, to participate in its benefits. Until recently the insurance was available only to those living in Canada. The act is a late re-establishment measure of the Canadian Government. It provides insurance for ex-service men without medical examination at premium rates lower than those of line insurance companies. Policies have a liberal cash value after they have been in force two years. The maximum amount of insurance allowed one individual is $5,000, and after the policy has been in effect two years it automatically becomes non-forfeitable in the event of non-payment of premiums.

VIRGINIA KEIFER BIRTHDAY PARTY

Delightful Evening in Celebration of Anniversary at Keifer Home

LA CRESCENTA, Nov. 15.—The attendance at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning was unusually good and Rev. H. A. Kelso delivered a splendid sermon. The Brotherhood, which was organized one week ago, elected E. Burt, president; R. W. Steine, secretary, and C. Bickle, treasurer. The mid-week services will be held at the church Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Keifer entertained a group of young friends of their daughter, Miss Virginia Keifer, last Saturday evening in celebrating her birthday anniversary. Dancing and games were among the diversions of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wildhack, accompanied by their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Wildhack of Indianapolis, motored to San Diego last Thursday. They visited La Jolla, Coronado and Del Mar. Mr. and Mrs. George Wildhack are spending the week-end in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jarman and Mrs. Ola Sutton of Los Angeles were guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. N. Nettleton during the week.

Mr. E. McKay and family of Seattle have taken possession of their new home, the Dyer home on Los Angeles and Michigan avenue. Mr. McKay expects to make some extensive improvements in the grounds and will build several small bungalows.

The Southerland school for boys gave a riding party and wienie roast at Onondarka ranch last Saturday.

The Flintridge Country club opened its social season with a dinner dance last Saturday evening. C. E. Culberson and F. K. Czerniski were among those who entertained.

The La Crescenta Improvement association had signs placed on all their streets last Thursday. The name of the street and La Crescenta are on each sign.

SALVATION ARMY'S DRIVE IS STILL ON

Giles Says He is Getting Warm Support Here for Funds for Army

Fred Giles, who has charge of the campaign for financial assistance that is being put on by the Salvation Army in Glendale, says that the people of Glendale are showing unusual interest in the campaign, in connection with which a "One Hundred at $10 or Over Club" is being formed. This campaign, which is starting this week, is in no way intended to conflict with the drive that is being put on by the Red Cross.

About the latter part of the week a house to house canvass will be instituted by th Salvation Army, and in this many local people and Salvation Army representatives will take part. The people of Glendale are cautioned not to give funds to anyone who does not have a Salvation Army certificate. The amount required by the Salvation Army from Glendale is $2,500 and it is believed that this will be secured within a short time.

CAME HERE TO VISIT MAKING IT HOME

Mrs. C. H. Anheier of 208 West Arden avenue, formerly of North Dakota, came to Glendale about a year ago to visit her son, Clarence M. Anheier. Finding that the climate benefited her health so materially, she promptly purchased a home in Glendale. A few months later her oldest son, Harry, joined them. Last winter Mr. Anheier spent three months in Glendale, and will arrive again about December 1 to remain here permanently. Mr. Anheier is a federal bank examiner and has delayed making the move until he could be transferred to this territory.

In addition, her other son, C. F. Anheier and wife, of Fargo, N. D., are now her guests, having arrived not long ago by motor.

Mrs. Anheier believes that if she had any more sons her enthusiasm could bring them to Glendale.

WIVES LEFT OUT

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The will of Daniel Rhodes Hanna, multimillionaire publisher of Cleveland, O., who died at his country mansion, the Croft, at Yorktown in Westchester county, was filed for probate here late today. The will leaves nothing to his four divorced wives.

WORLD PEACE COME BY EVOLUTION IS CAPPER THEORY

Kansas Senator Gives Views of How Peace Will Finally be Secure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—"World peace must come by evolution," Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, declared recently in an article written for International News Service on the conference for the limitation of armaments. His article, together with one written by Senator Oddie, of Nevada, follows:

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER (R.), KANSAS.
(Written for International News Service.)

There are few people, I am sure, who believe that the conference on limitation of armaments will lead at once to a cessation of war, though all thinking men earnestly hold that it may. In a world that has had wars for eighty centuries that is probably too much to expect. However, if, as the President has so aptly put it, the conference results in a "reasonable limitation" of armaments much will have been accomplished. That much will be done because it must be done. A world outraged by war demands it.

The people, who furnish the money and the human fodder for the guns of the war lords, neither can nor will longer endure a continuation of the world-wide contest in armaments, which leads only to war. The world is realizing that it faces bankruptcy and ruin if naval and military expenditures are not halted and that civilization faces certain destruction if there should be another big war.

So probably the biggest thing the conference can accomplish will be to put a stop to the race for armaments. If that first step shall place the world on a peace footing and in a peace attitude it will be the world's greatest diplomatic achievement. Actual world peace will have to come by evolution, by stages and degrees.

By SENATOR TASKER L. ODDIE, (R.), of NEVADA.
(Written for International News Service.)

My admiration for and confidence in the men the President has chosen to represent our country at the conference convinces me that they will do the right thing in the right way and at the right time.

I believe the representatives of the foreign governments who will attend the conference will do the same.

Thus the great question of limitation of armaments will be thoroughly and intelligently discussed, and I for one am confident of beneficial results.

AFFAIRS ANATOL AT T. D. & L. THEATER

Subtitles of epigrammatic brilliance are taken for granted in a Cecil B. DeMille production following the high mark set by the subtitles in "Why Change Your Wife?" "Something to Think About," and "Forbidden Fruit." However, "The Affairs of Anatol," the latest production of the famous producer, which will be the feature at the T. D. & L. theater next three days is said to excel all previous efforts in this respect.

Jeanie Macpherson, author of the story—suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's play of the same name—is responsible for these subtitles and to her goes the credit for their scintillating phraseology, thought and wit.

"The Affairs of Anatol" is a searching analysis of the matrimonial and divorce problem handled with the mastery which is Cecil B. DeMille's chief distinction. He has developed a powerful story that deals in real truths, it is said, and to this he has added a sympathetic comedy note that serves to relieve the serious vein of the story without in anyway detracting from the power or vividness of the central theme. Wallace Reid and Gloria Swanson head an all-star cast in this picture.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 15.—Wisconsin has paid approximately $16,000,000 in bonus money for its service men and women in the three years following the armistice, it is stated in a report from Madison.

TUJUNGA NOW HAS MONTE VISTA BANK

TUJUNGA, Nov. 15.—The Monte Vista Valley Bank opened for business in Tujunga on Thursday, with F. S. Scoville as cashier in charge. Edmund Greenfield, cashier of the Temecula Bank, who was formerly a resident of Tujunga, was a visitor in this city last week. A Ziser has purchased the Glendeny property on Monte Vista boulevard.

SEATTLE, Nov. 15.—Advertising is as essential to the ice cream industry as to any other trade, Paul Heath of Chicago told the Pacific Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association, in its sixth annual convention here.

GROGGY CHICKENS AROUSE SUSPICION

COLMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 15.—That Miles Dague's chickens staggered when they should have strutted, flopped when they should have flown, and giggled when they ordinarily cackle are claims made by neighbors, who also detected the smell of alcohol.

When Federal officers, upon solicitation of neighbors, visited Dague's place they found a still and some mash.

"That isn't for making whisky," said Dague. "I've found that my hens will lay two or more eggs a day when I feed them that kind of mash."

The Federal officials, however, decided that Dague should account in Federal Court for the situation.

Truths in Epigram

As men, we are all equal in the presence of death. —Publius Syrus (42 B. C.).

The mariner of old said to Neptune in a great tempest, "O God! thou mayest save me if thou wilt, and if thou wilt thou mayest destroy me; but whether or no, I will steer my rudder true."—Montaigne (1533-1592).

LIVING A LONG TIME

From Derbent, a town in Caucasia, comes report of unprecedented longevity. In a hamlet near there, out of a total population of 120, there are eighteen men more than a century old. Nothing is said as to the women. It may be that pride causes them to fib as to the number of their years. But anyhow, even eighteen centenarians out of a total of 120, must be regarded as an extraordinary number. The easiest way to account for the tale is by concluding the correspondent to be a liar, probably in the interests of publicity.

Along with the impressive vital statistics is the statement that the contingent of venerables subsist on a diet of sour milk, cheese and white bread. Nothing is said as to their indulgence in liquor, tobacco, or the pitching of horseshoes. The inference is that whatever else one may do in that hamlet, a diet as set forth is the only essential to living happily ever after. Following close upon the announcement doubtless will be advertisements showing how the materials for extending life indefinitely may be procured at reasonable rates, "the only genuine bearing the signature of," etc., etc.

Perhaps the boon of existence in Caucasia is so sweet as to be worth the ordeal of sour milk. If so, the place must possess peculiar and matchless charm. Unless surroundings were flawlessly delightful, the person living a century on sour milk and cheese would seem to have lived at least 200 years.

DISTINCTIONS IN BANKRUPTCY

According to a French financial authority, if Germany goes bankrupt, it will be in a monetary and not an economic sense. That is to say, it will be out of cash, and thus unable to continue reparation payments, but would retain its industrial power intact.

The ordinary lay person will have to confess that this is a little too deep for him. Russia tried the experiment of going without money, but no part of the organization of society there remained intact, and production dwindled, starvation supplanting the former activities.

If Germany is able to go to smash financially, and thus be positioned so as to take unblushingly, the poor debtor's oath, it really will have "put something over," as the saying it. Perhaps the idea is that the dairyman will pay cheese for his shoes, the coal miner accept an order for groceries in lieu of cash, and the farmer needing a keg of nails, swap a pig for it. The old scheme of barter. It worked among the ancient savages, but even the American Indians resorted to use of wampum.

Germany is reported in dolorous extreme one day. The next day the world is told that Germany has the best chance of any nation to control the world's markets, underselling all and sundry. It could pay its debts, but won't. It is desirous of paying its debts, but can't. Some discrepency evident.

Human experience points to the reasonableness of the assumption that if German money becomes utterly worthless, the country will be as helpless to meet obligations at home as abroad; that a financial smash is a smash, and not a personally conducted theory. But nothing seems to be absolutely certain any more.

CHINA'S PLACE

China seems to be the one nation that has chosen the role of humility. It is in no sense aggressive. It has been grossly imposed upon by almost every other nation, and has made no hostile response.

The Chinese are punctilious in the payment of their debts. Failure to pay promptly is by the individual Chinese regarded as a deep disgrace. It has been known to lead to suicide. Such suicides are not frequent, probably only because such defaults are rare.

Announcement is made that Dr. Soo, personal representative of Dr. Sun Yet-Sen, president of the South China republic, has left Washington. This is to emphasize the doctrine that China has no part in the conference. As a matter of fact, Chinese have been invited, but they come from the other political division of China. To the region slighted this is a sore grievance. According to Soo, North China is under control of the Japanese, while the republic Dr. Sun heads is devoted to the interests of a real China.

But no matter whether China be represented fairly, or represented at all, the great duty rests upon the delegates to see that the oldest nation in the world, the most placid and the least meddlesome, shall cease to furnish an arena for the staging of international confidence games.

So long as China is regarded as legitimate prey, and easy game at that, there cannot be stability in any covenant of peace that may be devised, and disarmament must remain a dream.

GETTING OFF SOFTLY

"Big Tim" Murphy, notorious ruffian of Chicago, has been convicted of conspiracy to rob the mails. This offense carries the meager penalty of two years' imprisonment. As he was convicted on several counts, the aggregate of penalties might if enforced restrain him for sufficient time to promote public safety appreciably.

The robbery resulting from the conspiracy was notably successful, the booty amounting to a fortune. The men actually engaged in its perpetration are subject to imprisonment for twenty-five years, although but mere tools of the chief conspirator. In all probability they did not even get a fair "divvy." Tim, the man higher up, took every advantage, in court or out, of his exalted position.

Making the matter worse is the probability that the prisoner will squirm out of his tight place. He has plenty of money, and there are tricky lawyers who while the money lasts will seek to defeat justice. Perhaps the money will last beyond the limit of the court's patience. As a rule the persistent rogue with money goes free through legal formalities even though these are known by everybody concerned to be devoid of merit. This particular rogue may serve his sentence, since the day of near miracles never has passed, yet nobody with knowledge of the devious ways of the trick attorney believes that Murphy will serve any part of his sentence.

Meanwhile United States marines are guarding the mails, with very proper orders to kill any postal bandit they sight. But the marines can't reach the conspirator, who is worse than the dupe.

IDEAL UNIONS

Occasionally some man and woman who believe themselves advanced, inveigh against the institution of marriage. In lieu of it they set up an association supposed to accord freedom to both.

Not long ago a pair of college students of this state elected such a course. The girl talked very earnestly about her prejudice against becoming an "economist slave." Through her head, wherein it must have had immunity from being jostled by many other ideas, floated the notion that she could escape this slavery by declining to say "I do."

Relatives of the couple, somewhat less advanced, objected, and managed to drag them to the altar.

Now they have come into notice again through the suit of the economic slave, who tells the court in a plaintive brief that the man resolutely and habitually declines to support her. So it would appear that he also had become an economic slave.

All this cannot be construed into an argument against marriage. Far from it. It merely is an argument against the marriage of the unfit. And the youths of blossoming intelligence who think themselves wise enough to upset the usages established by experience far broader than their own, are unfit.

There are ideal unions, resulting in mutual happiness, and lasting long. These are not the clandestine unions contrived in secrecy, and shocking to the average sense of propriety. They are not sly compacts, hidden understandings, or the outcome of juvenile folly.

NOT WORTHY OF CLEMENCY

A woman who spends time and money in the effort to befriend prisoners, and to save the worthy among them, is now seeking to send an ungrateful beneficiary to prison. It is there that he belongs.

The offender in question committed forgery at the age of eighteen. Because of his youth, the philanthropist thought he might be redeemed and set on the right path. She besought probation for him and was successful. Then she furnished him a temporary home, advanced money to him, procured employment for him. The next she heard of him was that he had been arrested for a fresh forgery. She sent for him. The only excuse he had for his weakness was that he was a "dope fiend," which is worse than no excuse. The woman told him that she would be as earnest in sending him to prison as she had been in keeping him out.

The incident is cited because it deals with an offender who is typical of a large class. No one would deny probation to the youthful offender deserving of it. The trouble is that courts often make such a mistake as the philanthropist did when the gentle and generous soul pleaded on behalf of an unregenerate rogue.

When probation has been won, and the penalty earned is withheld, the prisoner goes forth under the bond of honor. If he breaks this bond, he is without honor, and thus not to be trusted. This being true, it is singular that some young crooks have been placed on probation so many times that their periods of probation overlap.

To bestow clemency on the unworthy is a mistake. It threatens law and order and public safety, and it gives the unscrupulous a license to continue his pernicious ways.

THE COMING WAR

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Everything seems to be in good order and coming along gaily in our arrangements for the Coming War.

Recently a number of articles have been published from an American newspaper correspondent in Japan admirably calculated to lay the ground for a campaign of hate in America against the Japanese people.

These articles have enlarged on how militartistic, ambitious, treacherous, and altogether inimical the Japanese are. It is difficult to conceive of anything that could be more mischievous.

There are two things you must attend to carefully if you are going to have a good war.

One of them is to sow a good crop of hate and carefully cultivate it.

There are a number of agencies now busy by innuendoes and by direct attacks doing their very best to develop against the Japanese in America that spirit of hostility which is so necessary as a prelude to the grand killing.

The second requisite for war is that we should have a large military preparation. In the case of a maritime opponent like Japan, we must get ready a great fleet. Our able and patriotic Americans are earnestly engaged in this.

The disarmament conference will not make much difference so long as we keep on developing hate and preparing a navy.

The conference will probably adjourn with a grand expression; with a desire for universal peace, but if we have not neglected the, two items referred to, this will make much difference.

Anywhere from a year or a year or two from now we may expect to call together our choicest young men and send them out to be slaughtered as a sacrifice to the great god of folly.

Of course, the rational thing to do, if we do not want war, is to get together with Japan and arrange an amicable settlement of our mutual interests, which any half dozen intelligent statesmen could readily do. Besides this, if we do not want war, we should do what we can in the way of a propaganda of peace and good will.

But these two things of course imply that we should abandon our vicious national vanity, which I fear is asking too much.

As for the immediate causes of war, they make little difference.

Anything will do for an occasion.

THE LISTENING POST

The welfare worker and the idealist and the dreamer were talking together.

Of the things they wished and the hopes they had.

And the discouragements they had encountered.

As welfare workers and dreamers and idealists are likely to do.

* * *

And the notes they struck were minor and sad.

Fine spirits are often depressed.

Because of their fineness.

You can leave a horseshoe out in the weather without much injury.

But you can't do that with a watch spring or a finely adjusted mechanism.

So fine-grained spirits often suffer from being out in the weather.

More so than coarser-fibred ones.

Which do not react so immediately and sensitively to external impressions.

* * *

Genius has always been subject to periods of depression.

Just as sensitive mechanisms are easily thrown out of adjustment.

And genius is a sensitive mechanism.

* * *

"The world seems to be far from the perfect state it should be," said the idealist.

"True enough," said the welfare worker.

"Sadly enough," said the dreamer.

* * *

"I am on the verge of discouragement," said the idealist.

"Our task seems hopeless," said the welfare worker.

"We make little progress," said the dreamer.

* * *

"The millennium is far off," declared the idealist.

"Ideal society seems hopeless," said the dreamer.

"The more we do the more there is to do," said the welfare worker.

* * *

And they came upon a philosopher, who was looking through a microscope at a rose petal.

"What are you doing?" asked the idealist.

"I am studying the rose petal," said the philosopher.

"What for?" asked the dreamer.

"To see if it is mathematically perfect in proportion," said the philosopher.

* * *

"Do you find it so," said the welfare worker.

"I think not," said the philosopher. "But it is not for me to say what perfection is."

"Why do you care for perfection in a rose petal?" asked the idealist.

"Why do you seek perfection in humanity?" returned the philosopher.

* * *

"That is the ideal state," declared the idealist.

"What are ideals?" asked the philosopher.

"Conditions of perfect state to be realized," returned the idealist.

* * *

"If there were perfect state then there would no longer be ideals," observed the philosopher.

"Why?" asked the dreamer.

"Because there would be no need for them," returned the philosopher.

* * *

"You must admit the world could be a lot better," declared the welfare worker.

"Surely," returned the philosopher. "But if it were perfect as you wish, you would have nothing to do."

"I would keep on with the work I am doing now," said the welfare worker.

"How would you do welfare work in a perfect state?" said the philosopher. "Would you paint the lily and gild refined gold?"

* * *

"Don't you believe in the millennium?" demanded the idealist.

"I do not," returned the philosopher. "I want some work left to do in the world. The millennium would put an end to progress."

"How?" asked the dreamer.

"You can't go farther than the end of the road," returned the philosopher.

* * *

"Don't you believe in dreams?" asked the dreamer.

"Certainly," said the philosopher. "The nearest approach to happiness we have in the world is built on them."

"But they do not come true as we wish," said the dreamer.

"If they did they would not be dreams," said the philosopher.

* * *

"What do you believe in then?" asked the welfare worker.

"Opportunity to labor and the spirit to do it with happily," said the philosopher.

"And why do you not seek perfection?" asked the idealist.

"Because that would end the opportunity to labor," said the philosopher.

"Then what shall we do?" asked the dreamer and the idealist and the philosopher in unison.

"Go out in the highways and work harder than before, because there is more to do," said the philosopher.

SONGS OF THE POETS

My Other Me—By Grace Denio Litchfield (1849)

Children, do you ever,
In walks by land or sea,
Meet a little maiden
Long time lost to me?

She is gay and gladsome,
Has a laughing face,
And a heart as sunny;
And her name is Grace.

Naught she knows of sorrow,
Naught of doubt or blight;
Heaven is just above her—
All her thoughts are white.

Long time since I lost her,
That other Me of mine;
She crossed into Time's shadow
Out of Youth's sunshine.

Now the darkness keeps her;
And, call her as I will,
The years that lie between us
Hide her from me still.

I am dull and pain-worn,
And lonely as can be—
Oh, children, if you meet her,
Send her back to me.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WINTER YACHTING

[New York Herald]

With the departure of Arthur Curtiss James and his party of guests on board the auxiliary yacht Aloha for a winter cruise across the Pacific and around the world there is marked the beginning of what promises to be a growing fashion in yachting. Between the Panama canal and the South Sea islands yachtsmen appear to be more and more of a mind to take advantage of the short cut to the Pacific afforded by the canal to visit those remote islands of the blest whose praises have been sung so appealingly by Stevenson, Frederick O'Brien, Gauguin and Mrs. Jack London.

Aloha is to be followed part way on her course by Edgar Palmer's new schooner, the Guinevere, the owner of which is planning a long cruise among the South Sea islands. With its electric equipment this wonder boat is likely to cause as much astonishment among the island natives as did the quant ships of the early explorers. Roger Griswold of Boston is contemplating a winter cruise down the east coast of South America in his fifty-foot schooner Lloyd M. Berry, with the Pacific as his destination. And it is reported that the owners of several other large yachts are to join the fleet of winter cruisers.

October to April usually means the close season for yachting in these latitudes. But winter yachting may become a fixture in the world of sport if Mr. James' example is followed by owners of other big and little boats who have time to spare in the winter for cruising at sea.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA M. STEWART

Joiners are good—standby-ers are better. It's easy to ally oneself to a cause when enthusiasm waxes high and the urge of strength is felt. But the test of the man and the woman comes later, when enthusiasm has waned and strength fails, and only principle and stubborn persistency hold to the line of effort.

Unfinished action, confusion, lack of real accomplishment! Perfectly good aims, if they only had had continued support. Effort for a time, then a gradual falling away of the forces, though the need was just as great as ever. How many organizations have failed right there?

Unfinished thought, illogical action. To reason carefully the end from the beginning, probable results from causes, what a common failure lies here. Because we do not do this comes misunderstanding, bitterness, chaos. We blame everything under the sun—but ourselves. Yet we might have known, if we had only thought.

Even nature is wiser here. Careful provision made for every weed of every creature. Protection, growth, strength, accomplishment. One detail fits perfectly into another, one result is but the seed of a future accomplishment. On and on go its cycles, with no hurry, no delay, each, even to the tiniest of creatures, carrying out its part of the finish.

There is so much that needs doing in the world today. It's the standby-ers that are going to do it.

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

A certain Mrs. Smith Wilkinson appeared at a ball at Albert Hall in London recently. She was clad in a dress that is said to have been insured for $5,000,000 for the occasion.

This woman has won notoriety by being the most extravagant of spendthrifts. It does not appear that she has any other claim upon publicity. Her pictures, freely published, give the impression that a washerwoman, by some stroke of luck, had been won away from the atmosphere of suds. Her name is not associated with any good work.

On the dress worn at the ball were more than 75,000 diamonds and pearls. The intelligence of a woman so adorned hardly could be rated above that of the agile member of the simian family prone to paint itself red and climb a pole.

Vulgar and wholly futile ostentation does not come within the ambitions of the mentally whole or wholesome person. This Wilkinson woman is a freak. Being visually more of a freak than the ossified man or the two-headed calf, she attracts greater attention. She is as truly qualified as an exhibit manifesting deviation from the normal, as either of the sideshow novelties mentioned.

Recently a reckless autoist was given a sentence of thirty-five days in jail. The general public felt a glow of satisfaction.

More recently another autoist of the same class has been given a seventy-day sentence by the same judge, and the public breaks into a smile of approval.

A woman with three hungry children, and herself famished, recently applied to the county authorities for relief. The fact was ascertained that she had an able-bodied husband who worked steadily for good pay. They captured the creature and now he is in jail awaiting a hearing.

The committing magistrate expressed regret that the cat o' ninetails could not be applied in a vigorous and possibly reformatory fashion. This regret will be generally shared. The conduct of the husband and father is indicative of far lower morals than possessed by the average felon.

Moving picture interests are backing Arbuckle. They seem to have aided in procuring the best available counsel. One of the literary lights of the screen world is now employed in acquitting the defendant in type; creating the atmosphere of innocence for the living, and a cloud of obloquy to shadow the grave of the dead.

The friends of the moving picture industry, not financially concerned, cannot fail to regard this course as a mistake. It is a matter properly to be left to the courts alone.

If the idea is that the well-nourished comedian may be restored to public favor, it represents a vain hope. His day in the pictures is done.

Unexplained disappearance of a girl of good looks and generally proper conduct, is the frequent tragedy of the news. At this writing such a case is receiving the attention of the authorities. The girl is fifteen, fair to look upon; no reason known why she should have gone voluntarily.

A strange side-light is thrown on degenerate human nature in almost every instance of this nature. A letter has been received demanding ransom. It states that the child was taken for sale into white slavery. Nothing could be more distressing to the parents. Of course the persons capable of such a crime are criminals of the basest type. But the strangeness of this letter, and similar letters, is that in all likelihood they are fraudulent, indited by wretches who have no knowledge of the outrage save as they have learned from published accounts.

Later—The girl has been found. She had run away to "see the world," and was caught without having seen much of it.

MISS BESS KIDSON WEDS WILBUR KNIGHT

Miss Bess Kidson and Wilbur E Knight were carried Saturday afternoon at Santa Ana, only relatives of the bride being present. Miss Kidson is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Card of 319 Patterson avenue and has lived with them since April, coming here from New York. It was while attending high school that Miss Kidson won a scholarship to Columbia School of Expression. After completing her course there she took a year's course at the Carnegie school in Pittsburgh. Since April Miss Kidson has been employed by the Myer-Siegel company as saleslady in the suit department.

Mr. Knight comes from Florida but has lived in Los Angeles for the past six years. He is employed in the wholesale and contract department of the Broadway department store in Los Angeles.

The young couple will make their home in Los Angeles for the present.

LITERARY SECTION MEETING TUESDAY

Twenty-five ladies were present at the meeting of the Literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club which was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Rowe on South Orange street.

The review of current magazines was given by Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward and proved a great treat to busy members who find it impossible to cover the magazines in their own reading.

Mrs. E. D. Cleophas contributed the review of "The Education of Henry Adams," to which the section has been looking forward for some time and which was greatly enjoyed.

The balance of the session was devoted to the discussion of plans for the bazaar to be given by the club December 7.

MR. STIME ENJOYS HIS 83D ANNIVERSARY

Armistice Day marked the 83d birthday anniversary of I. D. Stime, of 514 West Broadway, and was celebrated with a big family birthday dinner at his home. The main features on the menu were turkey and a large cocoanut birthday cake decorated with candles.

One of the most interesting facts regarding the party is that there were four generations present. Mr. Stime was the recipient of many nice gifts and during the afternoon pictures were taken of the different families.

The guests included Mrs. Ida Skougah of Pasadena, Dr. R. L. Stime of San Francisco, Mrs. Anna L. Stime, Richard W. Stime, Vernice G. Stime, Jack and Phillip Stime, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stime and the guest of honor, R. D. Stime.

MUSIC CLUB TO MEET IN AFTERNOON

As a courtesy to the drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, which is giving three one-act plays at the Glendale theatre Friday, night as a clubhouse benefit, the Glendale Music club is holding its regular business session Friday at 4 p. m. at Glendale High instead of in the evening. This will enable members to attend the dramatic performance.

The meeting, which will take place in the room of the music department, is for members of the executive board and chairmen of committees, and the chief subject of discussion will be preliminary arrangements for the concert by the great opera singer, Alice Gentle, which the club is putting on December 2.

PREMIER BRIAND IS FOR LIMITING OF LAND ARMAMENT

French Statesman in Hearty Accord With Plan to Bring World Out of Wars

CONTINENTAL HALL, Washington, Nov. 15.—Limiting land armaments must be brought before the arms limitation conference soon, Premier Briand of France said today in his reply accepting America's program of cutting naval armaments.

Briand asserted that the question of land armaments "must come before the conference—will come before it."

"When that time comes," said Briand, "France will answer your appeal. I have listened with great joy to the generous adhesion to the American naval plan by Great Britain and Japan."

Briand said that if disarmament were merely a question of economy it would be unworthy of such a conference. "No," he cried, "the question is whether the people of the world have at last found a way to come to agreements to prevent the horrors of war."

Following the British and Japanese acceptance, Carlo Schanzer of the delegation lauded the clear, bold position taken by Hughes, praising his "program of action."

"We of the Italian delegation trust, we hope, that your proposals, when accepted, will be of the most beneficent effect," he said.

Premier Briand of France declared that his nation is in complete accord with the program for limiting armaments.

"Today from the expressions we have heard from the different great nations here represented, we all know we are in complete accord upon the first of our great problems, that of naval armaments," he said. "I can express the hope and the belief that we will be of the same accord in all the others."

RED CROSS WORK IS DOING GREAT GOOD

Camp for Children in Pacific Division Well Worth Support of People

The work that the Red Cross is doing for the betterment of health conditions and the welfare of children is well illustrated by the story of Colyear Springs summer health camp, as told by Miss Smith, representative for the Pacific division.

Four Red Cross chapters in the counties of Glenn, Colusa, Tehama and Shasta combined their efforts to establish a summer health camp for underweight children. A camp site was offered by Dr. J. A. Owen of Red Bluff, 35 miles from that city, ideally located as to climate, scenery and natural facilities. Sixty little underweight kiddies were taken over impossible roads, kept for six weeks, given plenty of nourishing food, proper rest, recreation and outdoor life, and returned home heartier, happier children than they were when they went up.

The camp consisted of 60 children, four nurses, three teachers, a Red Cross secretary, two cooks, a chore man and five cows. It was only through the most untiring effort on the part of the Red Cross representatives, the nurses and the teachers that the camp was made a reality and a complete success. Chapter funds, Christmas seal money from the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Junior Red Cross funds, together with donations from individuals, were used to finance the summer camp. Careful planning and financing and the liberal donations of food from the country people, who showed enthusiastic interest in the project, made the camp possible.

According to Miss Smith, San Joaquin county chapter gave material assistance to the summer camp in that county. The Red Cross public health nurse was at the summer camp with the Camp Fire Girls for two weeks, where she treated all minor ailments, gave health talks, distributed food and health literature and gave classes in first aid.

Red Cross chapters have also given assistance to the maintenance of San Gabriel camp, Kern county kiddies' camp, and Kaweah Kamp, in Tulare county, through the contribution of funds as well as food and clothing.

This is the kind of work your dollar helps to do when you buy a membership in the Red Cross.

The honor and glory of the average man is that he is capable of following the initiative—that he can respond internally to wise and noble things, and be led to them with his eyes open.

OBENCHAIN WOULD 'REWED MADALYNNE

Has Marriage License But Will Not be Able to Use It Until Trial Held

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—Ralph Obenchain today holds a marriage license to wed Madalynne Donna Connor—the beautiful Madalynne Obenchain of the Kennedy murder case. The marriage cannot take place until after Madalynne's trial, Sheriff Traeger announced. It was prevented late yesterday in a startling tableau in a dim, gray corner of the county jail corridors. Ralph Obenchain, who stepped out of Madalynne's life and permitted her to divorce him because she was in love with John Belton Kennedy, stood in front of his former wife. She was half reclining in a lounging chair. Arthur C. Burch was on his knees in front of her pleading. Reporters, hearing quiet voices in the out of the way corner, entered on the scene.

"Please," Madalynne said. "I do not want to talk to newspaper men just now." The reporter delegation retired.

When the little conference was broken up, Madalynne came down the corridor first. She was smiling happily. Burch came next—escorted by Jailer Cronin. Then Ralph Obenchain, flushed of face and silent. He would not say whether Burch's pleadings had prevented Madalynne's accepting him. He listened stonily while Undersheriff Biscailuz buttonholed him and impressed upon him that the marriage would not be permitted under any circumstances until Madalynne had faced trial for her alleged part in the midnight shooting of young Kennedy. Ralph Obenchain gave his age as 31 when he obtained the marriage license. Madalynne's was given as 28.

APPOINTMENT WAS NO SURPRISE HERE

Hartley Shaw Felt Father's Long Service on Bench Warranted Action

The action of Governor Stephens in elevating Lucien Shaw of Los Angeles to the position of chief justice of the state of California, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of F. M. Angelloti, is no surprise to his son, Hartley Shaw of this city, nor to his many friends in the profession, since he was the logical candidate. For 19 years he has been associate justice and has been compelled by his duties to spend the greater part of his time in San Francisco. He has always maintained his official residence in Los Angeles, however, where for 14 years he was a judge in the superior court.

ENDEAVOR SOCIETY VISITED MISSION

Over 25 members of the Christian Endeavor society of Central Christian church visited the Rescue Mission on South Los Angeles street in Los Angeles last night, going down in five automobiles and taking with them a goodly supply of jams and jellies for the Mission. Rev. Cole preached to the large gathering of "down and outers," who gather nightly at the mission for fellowship and entertainment.

MOYSE CALLS BOARD ATTENTION TO LAW ON ATTENDANCE

All Between Ages of 16 and 18 Should Put in Number of Hours at Study

An effort is being made by Prof. G. U. Moyse, principal of Glendale high school, to have everyone between the ages of 16 and 18 receive instruction along various lines as provided by law, according to a communication read before the board of directors of the Glendale chamber of commerce at noon today. The law provides that all persons between these ages, whether or not employed, must attend school for 240 minutes per week throughout the school year, 40 minutes of each week to be devoted to the instruction of citizenship. This instruction must be given in the regular schools during the usual school hours. There is a penalty for the parent and school officials who do not cooperate in this matter.

Prof. Moyse's communication also states that all persons under the age of 18 who are regularly employed must have a working license. The business men of the city are asked to cooperate in this matter, as is also the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, to which body the communication was addressed.

At this meeting another communication was read, having been addressed to C. C. Cooper, president of the organization, by Charles E. Shillet of Culver City. This communication embodies an invitation to the members of the chamber of commerce to attend a meeting of the Anti-Annexation League, which will be held at the Country Club of Culver City on Wednesday evening, November 16, at 6:30.

HABEAS CORPUS IS ON FOR MADALYNE

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 15.—A petition for writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, is expected to be acted upon by the state supreme court, sitting here today. The court late yesterday denied the request of attorneys of Mrs. Obenchain for a writ of mandate asking the dismissal of Mrs. Obenchain or an immediate trial. Her attorneys charged that she had been held in jail more than the sixty-day limit set by law.

WIDOW ASKS "MAW"

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 15.—Well, well, well! A widow had to have the consent of her mother before she could marry the second time. A marriage license clerk declined to issue a license to Mrs. Nora Schaeffer, 18, and James R. Boone—until Mrs. Lillie Wade, mother of the widow, gave her consent.

Pi Beta Pi.—The Glendale group of members of the Pi Beta Pi of Los Angeles, of which there are twelve in this city will be entertained for luncheon and an all-day meeting on Thursday by Mrs. Frank Ayars at her home on North Orange. They will spend the day in needle-work for the bazaar to be given as a benefit for the fund to establish a permanent chapter house at U. S. C.

RICHARDSON BOYS HOME FROM NAVY

Jesse and Eddie Have Been Discharged From Service After Seeing World

Jesse and Eddie Richardson, sons of Mrs. William D. Abernathy, 319 West Garfield avenue, have just returned home with honorable discharges from the United States Navy. They spent 18 months in the service of Uncle Sam, located on the U. S. S. Albany, attached to the Asiatic fleet.

While in the navy the boys visited the Hawaiian Islands, Guam, Philippine Islands, different parts of China, Japan, Korea and also did patrol duty on the Siberian coast, being on duty the night Lieut. Langford was killed by a Japanese soldier.

The boys are now home to stay and are anxious to get to work. They brought with them many beautiful presents for their mother. They are both glad to be home and say Glendale looks mighty good to them.

To Bakersfield—Attorney and Mrs. Hartley Shaw of West Park avenue are leaving Wednesday on a business trip to Bakersfield and will be gone for several days. Their daughters, Dorothy and Evelyn, who are attending Pomona college, came home for the week-end.

SCHUMANN-HEINK SINGS GERMAN SONG

Great Star Asks Audience to Let Her Sing and They Approved

LONG BEACH, Nov. 15.—Despite requests that she eliminate German songs from her program, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, world famous contralto, sang Franz Schubert's "The Erl King," at a concert here last night.

"Schubert couldn't help being a German and he had nothing to do with the war," said the singer in an introductory statement to her audience in which she related the loss of her own sons in the war and declared that none could question her loyalty.

"Art knows no nationality. Let me sing my German song," the famous prima dona pleaded. The audience applauded and she sang. Mme. Schumann-Heink announced her intention of singing a number of songs in German at her appearance in London in a few months.

Boy Improves.—The Glendale hospital reports continued progress toward recovery by Wayne Yarick, who, the nurse says, is doing much better than anticipated. The hospital authorities are very outimistic about his case.

THE FOXE'S PRIDE TAKES A FALL

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Of course you know what happened to that crafty fox once Trailer the Hound set eyes on him. First thing Mr. Bushy-tail knew a voice snarled close behind him: "Now let's see you fight me!"

That was the last thing he wanted to do. Any bully who'll pick on a fellow when he has somebody to help him is sure to be scared to death to fight all alone. His feet began to dodge of themselves, like Nibble Rabbit's. Only Nibble's don't often run run upside down in empty air. That's what his did the second after Trailer struck him. He rolled over and over, twice, before his toe-pads touched the ground and he went streaking off like a bullet out of a gun.

Trailer was right on his heels, with Sandy pounding along as fast as he could make the roan mare gallop, whistling and calling. He didn't want to lose his dog again, but this was no time to hunt. He wanted to rescue two little boys who had stopped already—for the only reason in the world that could have stopped them. They couldn't go on. They were marooned on the back of Redskin the Colt in the mud-trap of the Big Marsh where that bushy-tailed rascal had led them.

But you know Tommy Peele and Louie Thomson. They didn't need any rescuing. They only hoped the fox would keep Sandy and Trailer busy until they had time to show Sandy so.

First they told the colt to stand still. He stopped lunging and plunging and only made his skin dance a very little when they walked down his broad back and jumped off his tail. He began to feel more cheerful when he saw they had a nice big hummock of bull rushes to land on. Now if he could only get a foot on one—.

What were they doing? They had whipped out their knives. And they were cutting armfuls of stalks. Right under his nose they laid them, till they had a pile most as big as Dr. Muskrat's house. Then they began to shout: "Come, on! Get up, Boy! Quick, quick, before Sandy gets here!" And Redskin came. His eyes were popping and his nostrils were cracking and his feet were slipping and sliding every which way—but he came.

It wouldn be 'most too mean to tell you how they rescued Watch. When a dignified old dog comes out of his mud-wallow tail first, with two giggly youngsters tugging at him, he doesn't like any one to know about it. And by the time the other folks were there to see, those two little boys had scrambled up on to Redskin's back again, and were ready to start off home for the second time.

—a question you have probably never given much thought. Most buyers of printing think that as long as type gets on paper it will answer their needs.

This is not a fact. A printer must interpret the purpose the advertiser has in mind and must select type to suit each particular job.

Our Job Printing Department is under the management of capable craftsmen, who understand the correct uses of type and can "put over big" any class of printing which you may have.

Our creative department is at your service, free of charge, ready to furnish suggestions on all classes of printing.

MILLIONS CHILDREN DO NOT GET RIGHT NOURISHMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Over 5,000,000 school children in the United States are suffering from malnutrition, according to a bulletin issued by the National Tuberculosis Association. Malnutrition when carried far enough becomes plain starvation. The vast majority of these millions of little ones are malnourished as a result, not of insufficient food, but of improper food.

To relieve this situation a plan for instructing the children in correct health habits has been advised by the National Tuberculosis Association in co-operation with Dr. W. R. P. Emerson, of Boston, the nutrition expert, and will be inaugurated in schools throughout the country as soon as possible.

The plan will by no means be an experiment, since it will follow the lines of the Modern Health Crusade, in which over 6,000,000 school children of normal weight are now enrolled. In determining what children should be classified as malnourished, Dr. Emerson has decided, as a result of long study and careful observation, that a child more than 7 per cent under normal weight for his age and height is clearly suffering from malnutrition. It is on this basis that the estimate of 5,000,000 little ones of school age suffering from insufficient nourishment in this country has been made.

"Chore Card System"

In the plan specially prepared for the benefit of the malnourished children each child will be required, through his teacher and parents, to keep a "chore record" card. This card, which is to be submitted at regular intervals to the teacher, indicates the performance of the following health chores, particularly adapted to the requirements of children suffering from malnutrition:

1. I was weighted this week on the day checked (x).
2. Besides a good breakfast and the noon and evening meals, I ate mid-morning and afternoon lunches, as directed.
3. I ate only wholesome food today, including vegetables, fruit, and drank at least a pint of milk, as directed, and tried always to eat and drink slowly.
4. I drank four glasses of water, some before each meal, and drank no tea, coffee, nor any injurious drinks.
5. I went to toilet at my regular time.
6. I was in bed last night ten or more hours, as directed; windows open.
7. I rested lying down not less than twenty-five minutes, both this forenoon and this afternoon.
8. I played in the fresh air today, exercising for the time and in the way directed.
9. I washed my hands before each meal today.
10. I brushed my teeth thoroughly after breakfast and after the evening meal.
11. I took a full bath on each of the days of the week that is checked (x).

Weight Important

The chore records will also supply a table showing the normal weight that the child should have. His actual weight and normal weight will both be plotted on the chart in curves, so that children and parents can graphically picture the change in physical condition.

By doing the eleven chores faithfully for periods of not less than five, ten or fifteen weeks the child becomes a squire, knight or knight banneret and is entitled to wear the insignia of the Modern Health Crusade. When he gains normal weight he may earn advanced honors by performing standard Modern Health Crusade chores and be admitted to the Health Round Table through physical fitness tests.

With these chore records will be supplied information on nutrition clinics and nutrition classes for the training of children and mothers. "A malnourished child is an easy subject for tuberculosis," says Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, of the National Tuberculosis Association. "We shall try by means of these special chore records and with the co-opraetion of our State and local tuberculosis associations to bring as many of the millions of malnourished children as possible up to a proper standard of health, so that they may better resist the onslaughts of tuberculosis."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Luster at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger. —Adv.

The Dawn of Hate. —By Herbert Johnson.

THE EVENING STORY

JENNY'S AFTERNOON OUT

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

Helen Louise was so cross that Sybil, her mother, couldn't do a thing with her. The only thing that would keep her from crying was to trundle her back and forth in her gocart. It was too cold and windy to take her out and, besides, Sybil could not leave the house. She always had to stay in on Friday afternoon; that was Jenny's afternoon out. As a curious coincidence, and one that seemed never to be lacking, Helen Louise was cross on Friday afternoons.

As Sybil dragged the gocart back and forth across the living-room rug, she could hear Jenny stepping about upstairs. Jenny was getting ready to go out. She went out every Friday aftrenoon. Sybil didn't know where, she never had asked, and Jenny never told her. But it was enough for Sybil to know that every Friday afternoon from 2 until 6 Jenny had absolute freedom to spend time as she pleased.

"And I would give anything just to have two hours of undisturbed quiet in which to play over some of my music or paint a little," Sybil thought. "I'm forgetting all I ever knew about water colors and the piano. I'm busy from morning to night; even when Helen Louise is not cross and William is content to play out of doors and it isn't Jenny's afternoon out."

She frowned into the blue eyes of her daughter. Helen Louise stared in astonishment at the clouded face, which she expected ever to find smiling, and she twisted her small mouth into a vociferous vocal effort. At the third shriek William came galloping in.

William was a great boy of three and a half with chestnut hair, eyes to match and red cheeks. He was done up in brown wool from top to toe and looked like a little round cinnamon bear. "What makes sister cry?" he demanded of the mother.

"She's cross," answered Sybil. "Run away and play, William. Maybe I can get her to sleep."

William bent over the gocart, wherefore Helen Louise, resentful, struck him in the face. It was an ugly little incident, and Sybil, surprised at her daughter's misdemeanor, could only gasp.

At that instant the door opened and Jenny entered. Jenny was several years older than Sybil, a neat, plain girl, with a certain dapper little way of wearing her blue serge suit and black velvet hat. She paused just inside the room and looked at Sybil. "I've pust been thinking," she said, "that maybe you'd like to go somewhere or do something this afternoon. If you'll change off with me I'll look after the children."

"Why Jenny!" Sybil said. She could not understand such a sacrifice of a precious commodity as one's afternoon out.

"The truth is," went on Jenny, "that after I'm all dressed I've changed my mind. I don't want to go out. I'd rather stay with the children." She came forward and picked up Helen Louise, who instantly stopped crying and began to coo. "You go and do anything you want to," she bade Sybil.

"Why, I don't know what to say," Sybil said. "Of course, if you'd really rather stay in—"

"Oh, I would much rather!"

"Well, then," Sybil's spirits soared, "I could use the time, Jenny. I—I believe I would practice, or no, I would paint. Oh, dear me!" she laughed shakily. "You see, I want to do so much I don't know what to choose."

"I'd do both if I were you," Jenny decided. "You've got four good hours."

"Oh, Jenny, you're ever so dear!"

Jenny carried Helen Louise upstairs. When she came down she had changed back into her house dress. From that time until dinner Sybil did not see her again.

Sybil spent a wonderful afternoon wth her music and paints. She did a whole picture which had been on her mind for some time, and ran through a package of music which her sister had sent her. Somehow the time seemed different with Jenny staying in. But thoughts of Jenny intruded. Sybil did not know Jenny very well. She had only come into the family six weeks before. But she had been brisk, punctual and obliging, a good cook and a neat housekeeper. Farther than that Sybil had not inquired. Jenny was her first maid; she had not hired until she felt that she must have help and could afford it. She had an idea that one should not be too intimate with one's maid—a certain distance should be maintained for the satisfaction of both employer and employed.

At 6 Sybil finished her refreshing afternoon. She bathed, slipped into a pretty dress and made ready to greet her husband. She had expected to have to tidy up the children and help with the dinner, but she found that Jenny had done all that.

"Well," Kendall said when he came, "how have you been getting along this afternoon with your handmaiden out?"

"She didn't go out," Sybil replied. "She stayed in. I was the one who had the afternoon out. That is, I painted and played while she minded the domestic machinery."

"Good enough," commented Kendall.

That evening Kendall went to a business meeting through a pouring rain. It was impossible to expect any one to come in, so after the children were asleep Sybil, feeling lonely and in need of society, suddenly decided to use the nearest means of companionship. She sought Jenny in the kitchen. The girl sat darning stockings. "You better come into the living room, Jenny," she said. "There's a better light."

Jenny obeyed. She seated herself, but did not resume her work. Nervously Sybil picked up a bit of embroidery. "Go on with your darning, Jenny," she requested.

Jenny took up the stocking. They worked a few minutes in silence. Sybil was wondering what she should say next when Jenny began of her own accord.

"Maybe you didn't understand why I didnt' want my afternoon out," she said. Sybil nodded. "Well, it was because I didn't know where to go."

"Why," Sybil asked, "where did you go all those afternoons you had off?"

"Well," sighed Jenny, "once I went to the movies, but, say, is there anything lonesomer than a show when you have to see it alone? The other four afternoons I sat in the park. It was too cold to do that today. So, I didn't know what to do."

"But, Jenny, why—I don't understand why you went out if you didn't have a place to go to."

Jenny flushed. "It's customary to ask for an afternoon off, and I was too proud or too simple, to let you know I didn't have any use for it," she replied.

"But how did you manage at the other places where you worked?"

"This is the first time I've ever worked. I had to do something to keep myself from thinking. I thought of a factory, but I decided I had more knack for housework. You see, I'd kept house so long for my brother. He died in June." She paused. "I expected before that to go from his home into one of my own, but John and I had a disagreement. He went away. I suppose I'll never be married now." Her lips quivered.

Sybil threw aside her work. She leaned forward and grasped Jenny's hand. There was no longer any distance between them. They were just two women with hearts, for the moment beating alike.

It is strange that men should see sublime inspiration in the ruins of an old church, and see none in the ruins of a man.

ANIMALS IN ZOO ARE NOT MUSICAL IS SHOWN BY TEST

Elephants, Bears, Buffaloes, Monkeys, Seem Merely Bored

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Music may have "charms to soothe the savage breast," but you can't prove it by the denizens of the Bronx Zoo.

Three members of a Broadway musical comedy company had the hunch they would like to try out their vocal talents on the city-fed animals. They wanted to prove to their own satisfaction that the beasts of the jungle could appreciate their warbling fully as well as the denizens of Broadway. They received the necessary permission from the zoo director and started to do their stuff. It was a huge success—with the singers. So far as effect upon the animals was concerned, however, they might just as well have expounded Euclid or Einstein.

Alice, the elephant, was the only one to show interest. But then Alice had undergone a preliminary course of training at Coney Island, where thy taught her to shake a wicked shimmy to the tune of a hurdy-gurdy.

Ivan Showed Disdain

Olga Cook, beautiful prima donna, warbled her sweetest to Ivan, the big Russian bear. Ivan gave Olga the once over and walked away, wearing a look suspiciously like disgust. Next Bertram Peacock, a silver-throated tenor, tremoloed all over the lot where the buffalo herd was grazing. Witnesses said the bisons never missed a munch. Then Irving Mells, violinist, tried some jazz music. Khartoum, the big elephant, looked up languorously, sighed and went back into his mood of thoughtful repose.

The next stop was the monkey-house. A rehearsal of the same stunt never disturbed the equanimity of the playful simians, who continued the all-important business of hunting fleas.

When Gabong, the orang, was brought out he clung to the zoo keeper with one arm about his neck and looked reproachfully at the singers. "What have I done to deserve this?" he seemed to say.

Vocally the musicale may have been a success; zoologically it was a tragic failure.

LAW-ABIDING

"Jones was operated on for appendicitis yesterday and after it was all over the surgeon discovered that he had left one of his scalpels inside Jones before he sewed him up."

"That was tough. Did they have to open him up again?"

"Oh, yes. Jones insisted upon it. He was afraid he might be arrested for carrying concealed weapons."

HEAD STUFFED BY CATARRH? USE A HEALING CREAM

If your nostrils are clogged, your throat distressed, or your head is stuffed by nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing inflamed, swollen membranes and you get instant relief.

How good it feels. Your nostrils are open. Your head is clear. No more hawking, snuffling, dryness or struggling for breath. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from any druggist. Colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up. Relief is sure. —Advt.

OLD BOSSY BRINGS HOME THE KETTLE

RICHWOOD, W. Va., Nov. 15.—There have been all kinds of moonshiners in West Virginia and numerous odd and divers ways of moonshining, but Richwood comes forth with claim for distinction of having the only cow moonshiner. She is named "Bossy," and is owned by Henry Gibson, of the South Side. She started moonshining the other evening when she came home with a copper worm such as is used in moonshine stills encircling her neck like a collar. She got the copper coil over her head while eating at a moonshiner's still in the mountains while the owner was absent.

TWO HUNDRED GIRLS WADDLE TO REDUCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The big scales at the health department creaked and groaned when thirty tons of women came for a tryout for the "reducing squad" which is to be a feature of the Health Exposition being held here this week.

An army of 300 ladies with "surplus upholstery" invaded the department, eager for an opportunity to join the squad of fifty to be given a special reduction course with exercises, baths, diet and training under the tutelage of a professional prize fighter.

The dear girls averaged about 200 pounds apiece with the total tonnage stated above. When the health commissioner advertised for applicants for the reducing squad he held out a hope that amounted to a promise that each of the fifty members might be able to leave from fifty to one hundred pounds behind them when the exposition was over.

ONE WOMAN JUROR SEATED IN CASE OF FATTY ARBUCKLE

Says She Seldom Goes to Movies, Children Are Not Interested

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—The Arbuckle jury will be completed by night, it was predicted today before the opening of the second day of the trial of the famous movie comedian for the death of Virginia Rappe. Five jurors—one a woman—have been tentatively accepted by both sides.

The primary question in the examination of each juror is "are you an Arbuckle fan?" if the talesman answers in the affirmative, he is asked "do you think that as a movie actor he should receive more consideration than an ordinary gentleman?"

Mrs. Edith Unsworth, the one woman thus far accepted for the jury, is a most acceptional mother—for these modern days. She testified that she had several children. She said she had seen Arbuckle in one film and in part of another.

"Have your children ever seen him and have they commented on him in any way," asked U'Ren.

"My children very seldom go to the movies. They don't care much for them," replied Mrs. Unsworth.

"If you were in Arbuckle's position, would you be willing to be tried by a jury in your frame of mind?" McNab asked one prospective juror.

"That is, in this case, will you apply the golden rule, and do unto others as you would have them do unto you?"

The juror indicated that he would.

"That's a mighty good rule," commented McNab.

"We object to this line of comment and questioning," interposed Deputy District Attorney U'Ren.

"Very well—if the prosecution objects to the golden rule, we will withdraw it," chuckled McNab.

MARIN PLESTINA'S EYES NEARLY LOST

Wrestling Bout in New York Became Sort of Eye-Gauging Match

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. — What a nice little war the "rasslin'" racket is turning into! Tex Rickard was out today with the claim that he had been jobbed by the "interests" in his debut last night as a mat impressario. Several hundred fans, who were the guests, were still talking about the season's "coming out" party in which John Pesek was barred forever from wrestling in New York; Marin Plestina, the "trust buster" had his eyes nearly gouged out; Referee Fleeson won a three round decision from the commission and a riot nearly resulted when it turned into "a bout to the death."

The rumpus started before the semi-final had been finished when a New York paper came out with a story that Pesek had a helpless right arm but would wrestle anyway. Rickard had the arm examined by doctors, who said there was nothing wrong with it and the party started.

Pesek started to lose on a foul by gouging the big Serbian painfully in the eyes with his thumbs. The referee stopped it and declared Plestina the winner on a foul. The commission went over the head of the referee and ordered the men back in the ring. Pesek was disqualified again and the commission aagin stepped in and ordered the referee to make them go at it again. Pesek got his thumbs working again. The commission then announced that Pesek was "barred forever" and his end of the purse withheld.

WOMEN'S FEET GET SMALLER EACH YEAR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—Women's feet are getting smaller every year, according to Southern California merchants who sell shoes—and they ought to know. A Santa Barbara dealer sponsored the first announcement of this interesting revelation. Los Angeles shoe merchants say he's right.

And the reason? It's the ubiquitous automobile. As the purring cars multiply in number, women take fewer and fewer steps. Their tootsies no longer are subjected to the strain of pounding the gravel all day long.

"The length of a woman's foot is a matter of heredity," said one dealer. "The width of her foot depends upon exercise, however. It is natural, therefore, that the tendency for several years has been for women's feet to get smaller—that is, narrower."

Hermes Trismegistus, as the ancient Greeks called the Egyptian god Thoth, was regarded as the originator of Egyptian art, science, magic and religion.

SYSTEM OF FILLING WILL PREVENT NEW FLOOD TROUBLES

No Liklihood of Repetition of Floods of 1914 in Arden Avenue District

All reminders of the devastating flood of 1914 which washed out many lots on the north side of Arden avenue between Central and Columbus, are being obliterated by a system of filling and grading, using dirt from basement excavations.

When completed there will be a level expanse from the street to the south wall of the wash, which consists of a double row of 2-inch iron pipe with several rows of wire, making a fence on each side with a filling-in of brush. This fill will provide ample protection aaginst the highest possible flood and will add greatly to the attractiveness of the street as well. If a similar plan was adopted all along the wash, on both sides, no fears of flood waters breaking through need ever be felt.

ADVERTISEMENTS BRING IN MONEY

Do Glendale Daily Press ads pull? A few days ago the Salvation Army inserted an advertisement in the Press telling about the drive it is now putting on. Numerous answers to this advertisement, accompanied by bills of different denominations were received, but the one that came in this morning was rather unusual

The envelope enclosing this reply contained the advertisement cut from the paper to which was pinned a $10 bill with not a word of writing. This method of giving assistance to a society that is even so worthy as the Salvation Army is rather unusual, these days, but it shows that all big-hearted folks are not dead yet.

New Home.—Jack Jenkins, who sold his home on Isabel street and gave possession a fortnight ago, is now living with his brother, C. L. Jenkins, while his new home on Tenth Street in the Grand View District is being built. He expects it to be completed about Christmas time.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

LONESOME

Bill, you thorny hunk of cactus, I'm a wonderin' where you are;
Where's the range you may be ridin' since you left the Circle Bar;
What's the Outfit you are workin' for and how you're getting on
Since I waked up in the bunk-house here and found you up and gone.
I don't know what was the matter and I never once inquired,
And the Foreman never said if you had quit or you was fired;
All I know is that I miss you and somehow I wish I knowed
What direction you loped off to on the day you hit the road.

Bill, you old bow-legged puncher, I'm a settin' here tonight
On a log beside the camp-fire lookin' down into the light,
I just had as hearty a supper as a well man orto eat,
And I got my bull and papers out and rolled a cigareet.
Then I looked out over yonder where the hills was just a blur,
And I just knowed you had left us and I didn't know what fur;
I just wanted some old feller 'bout the size and looks of you
To be settin' here beside me and to be a-talkin' to.

I'm plumb lonesome, Bill, doggone it, and there ain't a bit of doubt,
For I set and let my cigareet go plumb, completely out.
And I went and lit another and I held the match so long,
That it burnt my thumb and fingers and I cussed it good and strong.
I ain't lonesome in the daytime, in the chapparal and sand,
It's when we make camp at evenin' that old Yearnin' runs her brand,
And I want you to be settin' there just like you used to do,
And a rollin' cigareets with me to be a-talkin' to.

Doggone it, Bill, I'm lonesome. I got water on my hand
When I rubbed my eye right back there and that's more than I can stand.
It ain't no tear, doggone it. Don't you say it is! It ain't.
And I ought to go to sleep, Bill, but somehow tonight I caint.
Where'd you go to, you old Bowlegs? I ain't got no notion where,
So I'm just a-askin' questions and a throwin' 'em in air.
'Cause I'm lonesome, Bill, I'm lonesome for some scalawag like you
To be settin' by this camp-fire and to be a-talkin' to.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MRS. ARTEMESIA BRAKEMAN.

Funeral services which will be held at the L. G. Scovern parlors Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. for Mrs. Artemesia Brakeman, will conclude with a ritualistic service conducted by the Women's Relief Corps of N. P. Banks Post, G. A. R. Mrs. Brakeman, who died Monday morning at her home on East Acacia, had been a very loyal, devoted member of the corps for many years and will be much missed by the women of the organization. She was 72 years of age and with her brother, Mr. Phillips, had a home together. Her sister, Mrs. Bullon of Los Angeles, was with her during her last illness, following a stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago.

MRS. HATTIE B. ANDERSON.

Mrs. Hattie B. Anderson, wife of Daniel C. Anderson, died at her home 121 South Pacific avenue, at the age of 51, after an illness of three months. With her husband, Mrs. Anderson came to Glendale from Chicago three years ago and in the interval she has made a circle of friend here by whom she will be much missed.

Besides her husband deceased leaves a son, Horace, in the United States army at Fort Lewis. Announcements relative to funeral services await messages from relatives—her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shephen B. Hutchings of Kansas City; a brother, R. E. Hutchings at Milwaukee, Wis.; a brother, Stephen B. Hutchings of Kansas City, who was chairman of the local committee at the American Legion convention at Kansas City. Mrs. Anderson was born in Chicago.

WOMEN HUNT

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—Three hundred and seventy hunters from Genesee county are in northern Michigan woods after deer. Four are women.

MEXICO NO LONGER CATTLE COUNTRY

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Nov. 15.—Mexico, once a great cattle country, is at present unable to supply enough cattle even for the butchers of the capital.

Stock is imported by the trainload from the United States and brought here for slaughter.

Some of the Mexican ranges are bare of cattle. Others, as in Sonora, after having been restocked, were depleted by drought. This has left Mexico with an extremely limited supply of cattle to draw upon.

It is asserted that there is much smuggling of cattle across the border by persons engaged in the business of supplying Mexico City and other places with beef stock. The cattle are driven into Mexico and pastured for a while, then shipped here or to other points.

As Mexico gives native cattle growers a low transportation rate on the railroads, the smuggers get the advantage of this rate by representing that their cattle were raised in Mexico and not imported—or smuggled.

RETURNS ARE NOT VERY SATISFACTORY

Returns in the Red Cross roll call are not coming in as rapidly as they should come. Last year Glendale was the first division to go over the top and she has never failed yet.

Money may be needed for Red Cross work at any time to meet demands in case of fire, cyclone, flood or sickness or for the boys at Thornycroft. The Red Cross is always ready to help at a moment's notice. Returns at the L. A. Trust and Savings bank Monday were but $134. Glendale's quota is $2000.

COUNTESS PASSES

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Countess d'Eu, 75 years old, daughter of former Brazilian Emperor Dom Pedro II, and former Empress Theresa, died today.

SCHOOL BOARD WILL MEET ARCHITECTS HERE TONIGHT

Supt. White Will Report Progress With Reference to School Site

A special meeting of the board of education will be held tonight at Intermediate to give a hearing to three local architects who are applying for commissions in connection with the building program of the grade schools.

One of the gentlemen who will appear is J. W. Morrison of 707 East Colorado street, who came to California a few months ago from New York where he had acquired experience in building school houses.

C. C. Rittenhouse of 212 East Windsor road, this city, who has been an architect for many years and who secured the commission for the building of the high school bungalows, is a candidate also.

The third is Alfred F. Priest of North Central avenue who was the architect of the Elks' Club house, and of the Glendale theater, and other buildings in the city. He recently secured a commission for designing a home for the Tuesday Afternoon club. Mr. Priest is now executing a commission for a school building at Ventura.

Tonight Superintendent White will report to the board relative to negotiations with the owners of certain lands desired for school purposes. This afternoon principals of all the grade schools will meet at Intermediate for a conference. Plans for Education week which is to begin December 4, will be discussed. Following this meeting Glendale High will be asked to appoint committees to co-operate with the committees of the grade schools along special lines for the Education week program.

SEE HELEN KELLER ORPHEUM THEATER

Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshell and Mrs. R. L. Milligan attended the performance at the Orpheum Monday that they might have the pleasure of seeing Helen Keller, the wonderful woman who has been blind and deaf since she was 19 months old, and who was taught to communicate with the outside world and to speak artificially by her no less wonderful teacher, Miss Macy. The ladies say it was a wonderful demonstration of the power of mind over almost superhuman obstacles, and they would not have missed the spectacle for a great deal. Miss Keller's voice, they say, is not unpleasant, and she is easily understood. Following the talk and demonstration of the methods by which she had learned to communicate she answered questions asked by persons in the audience relative to her nationality, which she proudly declared to be "American," and her politics of which she said she had none.

All that glitters can't be measured by the golden rule.

Town Topics

Lindsey to Speak—Estelle Lawton Lindsey, once a member of the city council of Los Angeles, and now celebrated as a newspaper writer, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Thursday Afternoon club at the Hartzell studio, corner of Brand and Laurel streets, at 2:30 p. m.

Musical Program—In addition to the chicken pie supper and the evening of cards which the Thursday Afternoon club is putting on Wednesday evening at the K. of P. hall as a program fund benefit, there will be an informal program of music and other entertainment which will be in charge of Mrs. Kemper Campbell, club chairman of programs.

D. A. R. Meeting—The Daughters of the American Revolution held a council meeting today in the Hotel Rosslyn, Los Angeles, the chairmen of all chapters of Southern California being the guests. Miss Ida Myers represented the Glendale chapter and Mrs. C. W. Houston and Mrs. J. H. Braly were invited to attend. The different chairmen gave reports on the work accomplished during the past year and what they intend to accomplish in the coming year.

High P. T. A.—The regular meeting of the high school P. T. A. will be held in the cafeteria of the school Wednesday, November 16, at 3:15 o'clock. Parents and friends are invited.

Teachers' Club—Members of the Kindergarten Teachers' club, of which Miss Crump is president and Miss Lauderdale secretary, are meeting this afternoon at Colorado school.

Purely Personal

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Braden, Mrs. J. A. Quackenbush and daughter, Evangeline, took a delightful automobile ride Sunday afternoon, driving over the Santa Susanna pass to Chatsworth and Fillmore, and returning by way of Grimes canyon.

Charnley McComb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weger, of 332 Ethel street, spent the week-end at his home. He is stationed on the U. S. Destroyer Marcus at San Pedro, formerly at San Diego. Mr. McComb expects to spend the coming week-end in Glendale, also.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Sturges of 310 North Cedar street had as their guests over Armistice Day and the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sturges and two babies, of Loma Linda, Miss Margaret Sturges of the White Memorial Hospital at Boyle Heights and Miss Hazel Sturges, also of Loma Linda.

Mrs. E. K. Wood of Laguna Beach is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rogers at 535 North Kenwood street. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers spent last week-end at Laguna.

Rev. Henry Goodwin of Adams street, was the dinner guest Monday night of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henderson of 401 West California avenue.

SCHOOL CHILDREN BE SEEN IN MOVIES

Thanksgiving Bill at T. D. & L. Theater Show Glendale School Kiddies

As a special holiday offering the T. D. & L. theatre will exhibit on Thanksgiving day and the day before the moving picture films of Glendale public schools which have recently been taken as well as pictures made in the commercial centers of Glendale. Following their presentation on the local screen the negatives of the pictures of the schools will be turned over to the board of education for subsequent use if they see fit to present them. Superintendent R. D. White is waiting to see the pictures of Intermediate and other schools before making plans for the employment of the negatives during Education week or at other times. The pictures will be a part of a little drama in which Glendale talent will be employed.

Mr and Mrs. W. H. Andrews of Upland were the over-Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sargent of 448 West California avenue.

KIMLIN IS GOING WELL IS REPORT

Clarence Kimlin, city councilman and business manager of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital is making a fine recovery from the operation he underwent last week for appendicitis. Unless some change for the worse occurs he will be well enough to be moved from the hospital to his home Friday and will be out and attending to business in ten days or two weeks.
